

Box cricket is a version of cricket that's played in a smaller, enclosed space. It's a fun way to play cricket, and it's accessible to casual players.

How it's played

- Similar to traditional cricket, box cricket requires a bowler, two batsmen, and fielders
- The batsman hits the ball thrown by the bowler to score runs
- The team with the most points wins
- Box cricket varies from traditional cricket in its playing surface and how runs are scored

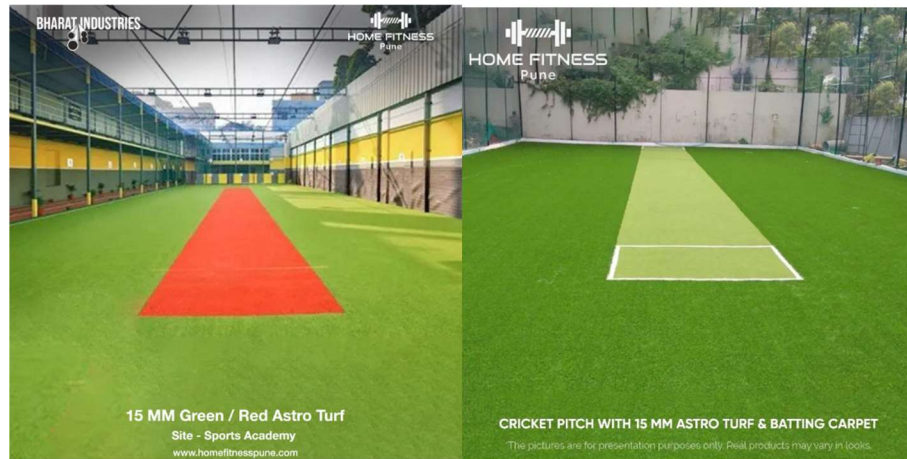

Where to play

- These courts are designed to be fast-paced and exciting
- They're often made of Turf to ensure a safe and durable playing field

Benefits

- Box cricket is a great way to get together with friends and family
- It's a great way to practice and improve your skills
- It's a great way to have friendly competition
- It's a great way to bond with friends and family

To create a Box Cricket turf, you need synthetic turf, netting and fencing.
